Source: Martin Currie. The NAV basis used is cum-income in £. Please note prior to July 2017 the NAV basis used was ex-income NAV in £. Ex-income NAVs exclude current-year income, while cum-income NAVs include current-year income. These figures do not include the cost of buying and selling shares in an investment trust. If these were included, performance figures would be reduced.

Prior to 30 June 2011 the Company's benchmark was the FTSE All-Share index and the FTSE World index thereafter.

MANAGERS' COMMENTARY

Within in the portfolio, Italian apparel and lifestyle company Moncler was the top performer after solid third-quarter results with a positive update from management buoyed the stock. Swedish global technology company Hexagon was another notable positive. Investor concern regarding weaker-than-expected business development in China eased as this area of its operations appeared to be stabilising, if not improving. Elsewhere, biotechnology manufacturer CSL, and Straumann - which researches and develops, manufactures and supplies dental implants - were also among the notable positives.

On the other side, the weaker stocks were typically more 'defensive' names such as L'Oréal and Coloplast. However, looking beyond the negative impact of the market's rotation out of defensives, the former reported third-quarter sales which were very strong. Likewise, the latter reported full-year numbers which were broadly in line with expectations, though there were small cuts to company estimates for next year. The weakest performer was global insurance specialist Beazley. Despite a relief rally following the company's third-quarter trading statement, concerns over a worsening claims environment negatively impacted investor sentiment.

In terms of portfolio activity, we initiated a position in CyberArk. The company is the leader (in revenue and technology terms) in the privileged access management (PAM) solutions market – providing a cyber security application which is growing fast and believed to have staying power as a core cyber security defence.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

This information is issued and approved by Martin Currie Investment Management Limited. It does not constitute investment advice. Market and currency movements may cause the capital value of shares, and the income from them, to fall as well as rise and you may get back less than you invested. Please note that, as the shares in investment trusts are traded on a stockmarket, the share price will fluctuate in accordance with supply and demand and may not reflect the value of underlying net asset value of the shares.

Depending on market conditions and market sentiment, the spread between purchase and sale price can be wide. As with all stock exchange investments the value of investment trust share purchases will immediately fall by the difference between the buying and selling prices, the bid-offer spread. The value of investments and the income from them may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed. An investor may not get back the amount originally invested.

The majority of charges will be deducted from the capital of the Company. This will constrain capital growth of the Company in order to maintain the income streams.
